Dear Administrator,

I am writing because I am concerned about the school sports field. I am a student who uses the field for sports, and I have noticed that the quality of the grass has gotten worse. This is because many people hold events there that damage the grass.

I think we should make some changes to help solve the problem. One way is to limit the number of people who can use the field. We could also stop allowing groups to hold concerts there.

As a student, I want to keep the school sports field in good condition for all of us. Thank you for reading my message.

Sincerely,

Alex Wang

Taiwan is a popular place for international students, according to two figures presented by my professor. The first figure, a bar chart, shows that of all Asian countries, Taiwan is second only to Malaysia in terms of the number of U.S. students who would choose to study there. The second figure, a pie chart, indicates that a safe and open environment is the most important factor for students when they select a study-abroad destination, followed by the opportunity to learn a new language and scholarship offers.

In my opinion, Taiwan is an attractive destination for international students because it offers a combination of factors that students value. Taiwan's reputation for safety and openness is highly appealing to students, as shown in the second figure. Additionally, Taiwan's focus on language learning and scholarship opportunities aligns with what students are looking for.

Taiwan is an excellent choice for international students. Its emphasis on safety, language learning, and scholarship opportunities make it an attractive destination.
